Know the Basics Using the Library

Your Rutgers Student ID Card is also your library card.

Use your Rutgers NetID and password to renew books online, request delivery of books and articles, and check the status of your requests.

Borrow up to 240 books. The loan period is one semester, unless an item is recalled by another user.

There are no overdue fines on regular loans, but if an item is recalled for another user and not returned on time, you will be fined $5 a day up to $50.

Citation Management

We provide students with access to two primary citation managers: Refworks 3 and EndNote. Use these tools to organize your research, file citations and documents, and create bibliographies.

Course Reserves

Professors place books, textbooks, and other items on reserve at the Libraries for classes.

You can view your professor's reserve list and access electronic reserves from our website. You will need your Rutgers NetID and password. Physical items can be checked out for in-library use for two hours at a time.

Print/Scan

The Libraries are convenient places to get things done. Take advantage of our printing, scanning, and faxing services.

Remote Access

Remote access to library resources is available with your Rutgers NetID and password.

Community and Campus Partnerships

From Comic Con and Rutgers Day to Civic Engagement Projects, Robeson Library is part of what makes Rutgers–Camden an exciting place to learn.

QuickSearch Access Information

Start typing your search term in the QuickSearch box.

- Select Rutgers Libraries to search for books, articles, media, and other resources available from the Rutgers Libraries.
- Select Course Reserves to search for course materials placed on reserve by your instructor.

Use filters to refine your results by availability, date, resource type, or subject.

QuickSearch will connect you directly to the full-text if it is available. If we don't have it, QuickSearch makes it easy to place a hold or request an interlibrary loan.

Tip: Log in with your Rutgers NetID to view complete results and access full-text content from off-campus locations.

Exhibit Spaces

Robeson Library hosts exhibits on our first floor. Recent exhibits have highlighted people, collections, and stories of interest to the Camden community, ranging from a personal tour of Paul Robeson's life and work and the histories of Camden industrial powerhouses like the the Victor Talking Machine Company to a display of classic comic book covers to coincide with the annual Camden Comic Con.

These exhibits are free and open to the public.
